

Sitka Sound Science Center Scientist in Residency Fellowships 2012

Apply for a one month fellowship (SIRF) located in the island community of Sitka, Alaska. Spend time on your own research, writing, or collaboration with a colleague. Each fellow must engage the community and provide local students opportunities to learn about their research. Applicants will be selected based on their passion and ability to communicate science to a variety of ages and audiences. Four fellowships will be available for professionals each year with an opportunity for two scientists to collaborate.

SIRF award covers travel expenses, living quarters, office space and a $2,500 stipend. Applications due February 15 voconnell@sitkasoundsciencecenter.org

Funded by the National Science Foundation with support from the Karsh Foundation and the Skaggs Foundation

Photo: Fred Fayette